Changes:

- 1. Name: Google has been changed to Alphabet.
- 2. Address: The state "CA" in text 1 has been spelled out as "California" in text 2. Additionally, "USA" has been expanded to "United States of America".
- 3. DUNS Number: The DUNS number has changed from 100 to 101.

Validation of Changes:

- 1. Name Change (Google to Alphabet): The change in the company name from Google to Alphabet can be validated through credible sources such as official press releases, news articles, or the company's official website. Alphabet Inc. is the parent company of Google, and such a change would likely be reported by reputable news outlets or disclosed in official statements from Alphabet Inc.
- 2. Address Change: The address change from "Mountain View, CA 94043, USA" to "Mountain View, California 94043, United States of America" can be validated by cross-referencing official sources such as government records, business registrations, or authoritative mapping services. It's common for addresses to be updated for accuracy or compliance reasons.
- 3. DUNS Number Change: Validating the change in the DUNS number from 100 to 101 would require access to official business registries or databases that maintain such information. DUNS numbers are unique identifiers assigned to businesses by Dun & Bradstreet, so any change in this number should be reflected in their records.

Date of Change:

Without access to specific historical records or timestamps associated with the changes, it's challenging to determine the exact date when these modifications occurred. However, typically, such changes are accompanied by official announcements or updates, which may contain the effective date of the changes. Verification of the date would require accessing these announcements or updates from credible sources.

For changes that cannot be validated, such as the DUNS number change without access to official registries, it should be noted that validation was not possible due to the lack of accessible information.

Regarding the addresses, since both text 1 and text 2 refer to the same location with minor variations in formatting, it can be inferred that they likely refer to the same physical address. Confirmation of this inference would require checking credible sources or official records.
